As stated in your syllabus calendar, the third - & final - exam for this course will take place on Thursday, the 17th of December.  The test will begin as soon as the session begins at 4:30 p.m., so you are advised to arrive early. Once it begins, you will have one and a half hours (90 minutes) to take the exam; but if you are late, you will not be given any additional time to complete the test. NOTE: Once you begin the exam you may not leave the room, for any reason whatsoever until you finish the test.

Taking the exam at the Testing Center: If you have been given permission to do so, you must make the arrangements; this includes providing the proper paperwork which I must sign ahead of time.

All students are required to bring a Scantron card Form No. 882-E (green) and a No. 2 pencil to fill in the Scantron card. You should also bring a pen to answer the short-answer questions.

All exam questions are taken from two sources: first, from lectures given from Thursday, the 5th of November through the last lecture given on Thursday, the 10th of December. That is, this exam will cover events discussed in class beginning with “The challenge of Darwinism” through the last topics we had time to cover on the 10th. So far as the reading assignments are concerned for this exam, you are responsible for the reading assignments from Roger Osborne’s Civilization beginning at the bottom of page 386 of chapter 15 through to the end of chapter 18. But you should exclude pages 402-411, regarding Karl Marx and the unifications of German & Italy, which were covered in the previous exam. Finally, you will only be responsible for those sections of John Lukacs’s A Short History of the Twentieth Century that address the topics listed in this guide. Specifically, you should prepare for questions covering the topics listed below. A few items may be added or deleted from the list below at Thursday’s session, so it is important that you attend tomorrow’s class. The exam will consist of multiple-choice & short-answer questions. Depending on the question, your answers to the short-answer questions may require only a word or two - or, your answer may require several sentences to get full credit for the question.

Print out a copy of this study guide and bring it with you to class on Thursday, the 10th of December. Do not address questions about the exam to me via E-mail. I will make time at the end of Thursday’s session to go over any matters you would like to raise about this test.

Note: Because final course grades have to be submitted within 48 hours of this exam, it is next to impossible to administer a make-up exam. Therefore, it is crucial that you take this test at this time. If you fail to do so, you are required to submit a valid, written excuse - for example, from a doctor - explaining your absence. If the excuse is not valid, if one is not given, or if you simply fail to take the exam, you will be given a zero grade for the test.
