childbearing age. These differences show the changes or lack thereof in the patterns of childbearing and childrearing.

In conclusion, there have been changes since the 1970s most of the dramatic but some not so much. We can see that many ethnicities still maintain their values from the past, only fitting in with the changing years not its norms. An increase in career opportunities for women and access to contraceptive products, show the decline in stigma to these factors and what little effect it has on people’s morale.
