Act of cremation is a mediterranean thing (not enough evidence of dead people during the early and mid iron age). All pots apart from the one containing cremated remains, had food in them. Plates as well. Objects themselves were made in Gaul or Northern Italy - importing objects in before the Roman conquest.

Late Iron Age, people are put into cemeteries again – Roman.

AD 40 - Caligula planned invasion.
Excuse was exile of Prince Adminius
This invasion never happened because he went mental and got them to collect shells from France instead.
Later, Verica the king of the Atrebates was exiled and fled to Rome to ask for help.
Stater of Verica and Stater of Cunobelin appear to show the divisions, however, may just be reading too much into it.
