prejudice can lead to discrimination in the case of the blacks and coloured being discriminated by the white man. The main root of discrimination is people wanting to feel as if they have power or control over somebody because they are different to other people. It’s outrageous but, it still happens today with disabled people or people with disfigurements. And again these people with disfigurements are being prejudged about their appearance before anyone has got to know them.

On a personal point of view, I think that prejudice is completely wrong but I can’t say that I have never prejudged someone, but I have defiantly, that I can remember, discriminated anybody. I think it wrong but at the same time, a bit natural for human beings to prejude. I do not think however it is natural to discriminate people as they are as an equal person as you are in every way.

My Monument shows all about what and who Rev Dr Martin Luther King Jr was and what he did in his 39 or so years of his epic and world changing life. If it were not for him, the world for sure would be a very different place.
