b. Treatment includes anti-psychotics which block dopamine receptors

13. What is the monoamine hypothesis of depression?

- a. There is too little serotonin and norepinephrine in the brain of those who suffer from depression; There could also be a problem with MAO;
- b. Treatment:
 - i. Selective Serotonin Reuptake Inhibitors (SSRIs)
 - ii. Monoamine Oxidase Inhibitors (MAOIs)

Preview from Notesale.co.uk
Preview from Notesale.co.uk
Preview from Notesale.co.uk