

Memoirs of a Teenager

Yes will tell a about adolescence, the stage will never admitted it was one of the best years of my life

I've been in I am 13 years old when he fell in love do not know if it was true what I did or not, but the fact is I have to say

So far, I dare not say that I liked people I am 13 years old in our society because it is a great sin

I was study in first year in colage , I had moved on to another stage in my life in the sense that I did not become small, I had a close friend to a lot, but soon left to be friendships end, was one of them live close to me and the girl was a stray and free-there is no one admonished

I am quiet girl that all people are held accountable for my actions

Mean we were like water and fire, I liked to live like her and wear like her and like her speak

I was innocent before what will be the person who changed the course of my life because of him and fell in love with his friend and did you stay just a love affair

The girlfriend also a relationship with his friend, we live in dreams rosy, always meet at the school and live the story of our love until the day came spoil my life I would have moved to the second year only to spite my brother came and said to me, "I know everything about the relationship of love," I was shocked because he My brother disappeared confidence

The problems started in between me and my family because my girlfriend is close to it as I said it was free

Whenever I see or met with the biggest problems more and more to the point I decided to find her and walked away from everything that causes problems

I changed my school and changed my life and changed my friends

But my friend also followed me to my school and the new point at which I thought I got it and I found myself back to scratch

In the new my school and fell in love with a person's second
