

All animals that come to blue cross are thoroughly examined for any diseases or problems they may arrive with so that they can be treated immediately. Some animals are isolated to stop the spread of disease whereas others are just placed in a happier home until they can be rehomed.

REHOMING.

When an animal is being rehomed a form is filled in online to determine which animal you would like. They then determine if you are a good match for that animal, if they think you are you receive a call to tell you all about that animal and talk through everything with you to make sure you are ready to care for this animal. Some animals you will visit a few times and have a home visit to make sure everyone is happy and then you can take the pet home.

EDUCATING

On the blue cross website there is a page which tells you all the ways to care for your pet. There is advice on feeding, behaviour, safety etc... they also have a helpline you can call and ask experts for advice.

CAMPAGNING AND RESEARCH

Blue cross relies heavily on donations from the public and there are many different ways this is done. For example some people leave sums of money in their will for the charity, some people adopt or foster an animal, others give donations or volunteer their time and blue cross also does some fundraising itself. This is how they raise money to keep the charity going.
