- Education is free (funded by the state), except paying private schools.
- No racial/religious discrimination in state schools.
- During Upper Secondary cycle, pupils seat for Cambridge O levels, then, Cambridge A levels to end schooling.
- Examinations fees are paid by the Government, given that students are present at school for 90% of the school days.
- Maths, English and French studies Compulsory for mainstream student until O levels.
- A levels pass rate has been decreasing for the past decade: 79.4% in 2006, 75.4% in 2016.

Problems involved with the Mauritian mainstream education system

- 1. Does not cater for all 7 intelligences: Musical studies not available in most schools at Upper secondary cycle.
- 2. Private tuition has become in the Mauritian culture, teachers and experts think it is a necessity.
- 3. Education not totally free as materials and above not offered by the state.
- 4. Students are asked to lose their field of study at about the age of 14, which a straining to some experts, too young.
- 5. Phere is not a minimum standard for school infrastructure and facilities.

Finnish education system

- Known to be one of the best education systems in the world.
- Finnish children don't start school until they are 7.
- The children are not measured at all for the first six years of their education.
- There is only one mandatory standardized test in Finland, taken when children are 16.
- The difference between weakest and strongest students is the smallest in the World.