	Session 2: Testing the Conditioned Emotional	 Albert became more and more 	conditioned by the white rat.
	Response (part b)	distressed After this, Albert was exposed 5 more	• When he was again shown the rate, he times to the "joint stimulation"	began to cry and "began to crawl away so rapidly that he was caught with difficulty"
	Session 3: Generalisation	Season 3: General sation
	 At 11 months and 15 days, Albert returned 	Abertalayed happily with the blocks for further testing	P Te immediately responded with fear
	 The researcher's question was whether the 	when shown the rat learned link between the aleane noise	 His response to the rabbit was as would be generalised.	extreme as to the rat
	• Albert vas presented with the rat, wooden	 He burst into tears and crawled away
	Chocks , a rabbit, a dos, a seal fur coats and	 Neither the dog of the fur coat produced
Pre	John Wit by Lot	a violent reaction To other objects, he showed cautions, but no fear response to Johns' hair
	Session 4: Changing the Environment	Session 4: Changing the Environment
	At 11 months and 20 days, Alberts	 Alberts response to the rat, rabbit and conditioned response was "freshened"	dog were less extreme than before using "joint stimulation"	After "freshening up" the conditioned
	 He was taken to a new environment – a 	fear response was stronger large, well-lit room with 4 people present	 Even when the fear response was weak, He placed on a table in the centre of the	it was noticeably different from his room	reaction to the building blocks Showing a distinct learned response
	Session 5: The Effect of Time	persisted between furry objects
		Session 5: The Effect of Time
	At 12 months and 21 days, Albert was tested on more time	Albert responded to the objects in a
	 He had been to the lab, but no emotional 	clearly different way to the control tests had been conducted	objects (the blocks)
	 The final tests involved a Father Christmas 	His reaction to the furry objects was not
	 The final tests involved a Father Christmas mask, a fur coat, the rat, the rabbit, the 	as extreme as it was previously, but he dog and the blocks	had clearly avoided and whimpered , and and the motily	on occasions cried	