

- This automatic rotation or locking of the knee occurs in both weight-bearing and non weight-bearing knee joint function.
- In weight-bearing, the freely moving femur medially rotates on the relatively fixed tibia during the last 30 degree of extension.
- Unlocking, consequently, is brought about by lateral rotation of the femur on the tibia before flexion can proceed.