

Obstacles to making Fusion Energy a

Reality.co.uk

- There are no known materials that can withstand the high degrees of heat produced in the fusion reactors (Girard et al.,2007)
- Previous experiments on fusion energy have always resulted to energy deficits
- Scientists have not been successful in putting the existing knowledge on fusion energy into practice
- Building of a fusion reactor is an expensive undertaking