

Karl Marx argued that _____.

- a. human history is best understood through the history of a society's economic system
- b. society does not change as a result of how societies produce goods
- c. the socialist movement is what allows society to change
- d. social classes ease tension in society

Question 15

Dominant theories of race during the time of W. E. B. Du Bois claimed that race _____.

- a. was not important in daily life
- b. was a socially created distinction
- c. had deep cultural patterns that shaped individuals' lives
- d. biologically determined different levels of intelligence in individuals

ANSWER

- 1. social distance
- 2. this is her status group membership
- 3. "the cult of the individual"
- 4. structural functionalism
- 5. an unrealistic image of consensus and harmony in society
- 6. the table (physical), the person's table, and the idea (abstract)
- 7. modern; an extensive division of labor
- 8. Marx wrote before Bourdieu.
- 9. social closure
- 10. capitalism is an economic system that has consequences between countries and not just within them
- 11. forces of production
- 12. changes gradually by norms and institutions adapting to new social challenges
- 13. the actions that follow from these choices are constrained by society
- 14. human history is best understood through the history of a society's economic system
- 15. biologically determined different levels of intelligence in individuals