

them. The shall is resistant to water loss and damage. In mammals (with the exception of egg-laying mammals) the development of fertilized egg into new baby takes place within mother body. In this case, there is