

After some days, the boy repeated the same mischief. Again people came running to his help. But when they learnt that it was also a joke. They decided never to come at the call of the boy again. One day a wolf did attack the boy and his flock. The boy was horrified and to him. They thought that he was repeating the same childish joke. The wolf killed not only many sheep and goats but also the boy.

Possible Morals:

1. Once a liar always a liar
2. Never tell lie
3. Do not lose your credibility
