

A- patient has a complete spinal cord lesion at the C5 level. It is important for this patient to generate a functional cough in order to avoid potential respiratory problems.

In this case, effective coughing:

- A. should be facilitated by use of phrenic nerve stimulator
- B. should be facilitated by use of glossopharyngeal breathing
- C. can be elicited with manual abdominal pressure provided with the assistance of a caregiver
- D. can be elicited with manual abdominal pressure provided independently by the Patient

104-Postnatal diastasis recto? The most effective to diagnosis?

- A-MRI
- B-CT
- C-US  if there is fingers we choose it

A- patient with a recent history of rib fractures suddenly becomes short of breath during secretion removal techniques. The patient looks panicked and complains of sharp pain in the left chest. A quick screen shows a deviated trachea to the right among other signs and symptoms. The MOST LIKELY explanation for the above is:

- A. angina.
- B. pneumothorax.  coz fracture cut sheath around lung
- C. pulmonary emboli.
- D. mucous plugging of an airway

106- at any age baby hand perfrance :

- A-6 months
- B-12
- C-18

Preview from Notesale.co.uk
Page 3 of 12

● C-Patient with a history of Raynaud's phenomenon

D. Patient with a history including many years of steroid therapy

142- Spina bifida is characterized by

● A- unclosure pia matter

B-hyperextension of knee joint

C- lateral curvature of the spine second most common

D- unclosure of pia matter

143- main aim of ICF (international classification function)

Impairment

Activity limitation

● Participation

144- Diabetic patient cannot brush hair, what is this according to ICF

● (Activity limitation)

145- Which negative factor you treat if you increase strength of muscles and ROM

Personal factor

Activity limitation

Participant

● Impairment

146- Which muscles used in climb stairs, go up incline

Hamstring

Soleus

● Quadriceps

Ankle plantar flexor

147- Where is the Broca's area for speech in dominant hemisphere

Preview from Notesale.co.uk
Page 11 of 12