

Models

The one-way model, the two personal relationship model.

The integration models

The system models

Communicate situation

Meeting conference seminal symposia debates interviews radio and television presentation

Leadership theory

Define of leadership

Qualities of a good leadership

Theory of leadership (trait and style theory)

Contingency theory

The path goal theory

Principles of creatives and reflective in conflict resolution

Communication is the process of packaging information or exchanging a meaningful message from one entity to another.

Sources of message the owner of message encoder of message focus of communication medium of encoding carries message receiver of the message

Communication is a process because it is continuous activities

Dynamic series of effect leading of achievement

Verbal communication is involve using words. It can be written or spoken (orally) the written aspect of communication is when you represent your message graphically in the use of letters.

Nonverbal communication: it does not involve the use of word but involve sound or sign and symbols it is divided into extralinguistic and paralinguistic aspect paralinguistic.