

Companies or organizations that sponsor international employees or students and want to provide financial assistance to help them achieve their language learning goals.

Individual learners who want to study in an English-speaking country or participate in a language immersion program need financial assistance.

4. TOEFL scores demonstrate a student's ability to succeed academically in an English-language university environment: The TOEFL measures a student's listening, speaking, reading, and writing skills in English, providing universities with a comprehensive picture of their language abilities. A high TOEFL score demonstrates that a student has the necessary English proficiency to succeed academically in an English-language university environment. This can increase a student's chances of admission to a university and help them excel in their academic program.

Examples of academic programs where TOEFL scores demonstrate a student's ability to succeed:

Master's degree programs taught in English

Undergraduate programs in English-speaking countries

Ph.D. programs taught in English

Language immersion programs

Use cases:

International students who want to study in an English-speaking country must demonstrate their language proficiency to increase their admission chances.

To be accepted, English language learners who want to enroll in a university program must demonstrate their language proficiency.

Companies or organizations that sponsor international employees or students who need to show their English proficiency to be admitted to an academic program.

Individual learners who want to enroll in a program at an English-speaking university and want to show their language proficiency to increase their chances of being admitted.

5. TOEFL scores can help students stand out from other applicants in a competitive admission process: With the increasing competitiveness of university admission processes, students need to stand out from other applicants. A high TOEFL score can help students demonstrate their English proficiency and be well-prepared to succeed in an English-language university environment. This can make a student's application more competitive and increase their chances of admission to their desired university.

Examples of competitive admission processes where a high TOEFL score can help a student stand out:

Master's degree programs in English-speaking countries

Undergraduate programs at top universities in English-speaking countries

Ph.D. programs in English-speaking countries

English language immersion programs with limited enrollment

Use cases:

International students who want to study in an English-speaking country must demonstrate their language proficiency to stand out in a competitive admission process.

International careers: For individuals seeking international jobs, a high TOEFL score can demonstrate their ability to communicate effectively in English, a crucial skill in many global business environments.

English-language teaching positions: For individuals seeking teaching positions in English-speaking countries, a high TOEFL score can demonstrate their ability to teach English to non-native speakers effectively.

Multilingual careers: For individuals seeking jobs that require strong communication skills in multiple languages, a high TOEFL score can demonstrate their ability to communicate effectively in English and set them apart from other candidates.

Examples of careers that require strong English skills and value TOEFL scores include:

International Business

English language teaching

Translating and interpreting

Marketing and advertising

Tourism and hospitality

Journalist and media

Law and legal services

Human resources and talent management

Preview from Notesale.co.uk
Page 17 of 18