

Q. What problems should the owners be aware of when expanding? How might these problems dealt with?

Ans: Any type of business requires determination and strategy to establish. To run a successful business some issues must be sorted beforehand. Due to the large visitor intake, the travel and hospitality sector is a very profitable company that constantly has something fresh to offer guests of all ages.

If I consider myself a hotel owner here and focus on the problems that I might face while thinking about expanding my business. Those would be mentioned below:

1. Property security issues
2. Rising prices of food as well as hospitality stuff
3. Operational costs and implementations
4. Housekeeping hiring and credit
5. Dealing with other competitors
6. Online hotel reservation system

Below is the detailed description of the problems that I might face in the business establishment as per my views:

1. Property security issues: The hospitality industry has been on a buying spree to ensure various electronic gadgets such as Fire Alarm System, Access Control, CCTV Surveillance, Intrusion Alarm, Attendance Management, and so on, but all the traditional point solutions, which are installed to solve major threat and productivity issues, are difficult to deploy, manage, and update, increasing operational complexities and overhead costs. All these drawbacks might lead to businesses implementing less secure policies and procedures.
