

doctors who get rich like really rich it's because they open a business and then private practice builds a brand and that brand attracts people. Businesses that have high creativity and high leverage tends to be ones where you could do an hour of work and it can have a huge effect or you can do a thousand hours of working can have no effect for example look at software engineering one great engineer can for example create Bitcoin and create billions of dollars with the value an engineer who 's working on the wrong thing or not quite as good or just not a creative or thoughtful or whatever can work for an entire year.
