

Signs of a Heart Attack Versus Signs of a Stroke

The main symptom of a stroke usually involves a sudden loss of function or ability, rather than pain. One common example is the sudden loss of the ability to speak. However, some patients may experience a pressure or discomfort, or feel a weight on their chest, rather than actual pain.