

Arthropoda

Some examples of Arthropods are insects, spiders and crustaceans. They are invertebrates (don't have a backbone but they do have an exoskeleton). They are bilaterally symmetrical. Cephalization is shown at a high degree. They are triploblastic and coelomate. They have an open blood system. They have a through (complete gut) with an anus and a mouth. They are found in aquatic and terrestrial environments

