

now have the top spot on Google for both phrases that you saw on Google Trends earlier, even if nobody at all Digg your story. People will click your Digg link at the top of Google and then click through to your blogger post at crazy rates. This means huge traffic converting very well. Of course this is short lived so you will have to do a new post everyday but your redirect can stay so it will only take 10-15 minutes of work daily for a ton of CPA leads.

It should also be noted that with a little creativity you can apply this to ANY type of content, I chose Weeds because it was on there twice and easy enough to slap together. Celebrity pictures and streaming big sporting events also work well but really your imagination is the only limit here. If you are wary of borderline grey hat tactics then try out Affiliateer or CPA Lead, both of which allow incentivized traffic. Also, it is always best to provide the actual content when possible – your Digg story will remain free of negative comments for longer – but whatever’s clever right?
