

Social Techniques

If you are trying to make another person like you. What can happen is you tell the other person they are pretty. You just keep commenting to them while flirting. You then need to do something called positive reinforcement. This means watch the other person's actions and add the flirtation. This helps you to either win a friend or get a date. You then need to do seduction and this means you need to tell them how you enjoy their different actions. You learn what the other person does and then you follow route. That basically means you do the same actions as the other person. The last thing you can do is talk about memories and then find the memories in your mind that can be related.