

DNA

DNA, deoxyribonucleic acid, is the genetic material in your cells.

Griffith Searches for the Genetic Material

Observations

Griffith deduced that something in the killed S strain was transferred to the previously harmless R strain, making the R strain deadly. He called this process transformation, as something was "transforming" the bacteria from one strain into another strain.

Avery's Team