

Power, this magic word that most of people seek in their lives and make it one of the most motives that drive them to their targets and sometimes to their ends . This word really implies several meanings that match most of people's understandings and objectives. The most common one is the physical power which is well represented in wealth and social ranking. Both are representing a real meaning of power to many people and this is why they can seek both to have the absolute power or at worst scenario have one of them as a step forward.

When we talk about money, we find most of people agree on one only fact that money can do everything in life and can turn the most miserable man on earth to the happiest one, and this makes it a magic key to power with which you can have the world at your finger with just one tap and this signifies its great influence on people and makes it a real key to Power . Also, you find some people seek better social ranking and consider this as their real power which paves the way for everything through wide range of relations that secures everything around.

On the other hand, we find another kind of power that is the psychological power which is not the target of many people even though in many cases it may have more effective reflections on people than the physical power if it is well used and correctively applied. What we mean here by psychological power is how much you have effect on other people and how much you can lead them to the direction you need. This kind of power is highly represented in the romantic relations in which you can find someone under full control of the other and doing everything he can just to see him happy. In doing so, he has no targets other than satisfying his partner.

If we really seek power, we have to allocate our objectives in life and from there we will discover what kind of power we really need and when reach this point it will be much easier to determine our tools to start our journey towards Absolute Power.
