

Compounds have different properties than the elements which combine to form it

Hydrogen and oxygen are colourless gases whereas water is a liquid

Although there are only about 100 elements there are millions of compounds

The formulae of compounds

The formula shows the types and the number of atoms of the present in the compound

Naming compounds

When a compound contains two elements a metal and non metal the name ends with ide

MgO

Magnesium oxide