

Primary sources

Legislation
General Notes: • Include tables of primary sources at the end of your work beginning with a table of cases, followed by a table of legislation then other tables such as treaties and conventions, UN documents, official papers and policy documents (see page 11 in the OSCOLA user manual). • See page 4 in the OSCOLA user manual for more information on citing legislation in footnotes; pages 23-28 for full details on citing UK sources (including Scotland); and pages 28-31 on citing EU sources. Citing in Footnotes: • A citation for a piece of legislation is not required in a footnote if the source, the short title of the act, is written in full in your text. • If you do not include the name of the act or relevant section in your text the information must be provided in a footnote. Citing in Table of Legislation: • Cite in the same format as in the footnotes but omit the full stop. • List every statute cited in the work, with the entry for each statute being sub-divided to show which parts of the statute (sections, sub-sections and so on) are cited where.
